The whole design world descended on Paris last week for the biannual international lifestyle, décor and design trade show Maison et Objet, now in its 25th year.

On between the 17th and 21st January, the design fair was awash with the latest and the best new designs from around the globe.

Three key highlights from the show included striking modern lighting designs, eco-conscious new furniture and creative ideas from France's rising stars in design.

GREEN FOCUS

To celebrate its 25th anniversary, Maison & Objet looked to the future and set out to analyse the attitudes, desires and expectations of Generation Y and Z's digital natives. A whole year's celebrations will be devoted to these committed millennials who, confronted with the many current crises, are looking for a better world, changing the rules and revolutionising consumer behaviour in both the home and lifestyle sectors.

Greenkiss is a new luxury and eco-friendly furniture brand that was launched by Hubert de Malherbe, Thierry Lemaire and Paolo Castelli.

The three seater sofa upholstered in bouclé wool, with a frame and legs in walnut stained ash are all from sustainable supply chain.
